

Accepting Communism In China

By: Jordon M.

Communism is a political theory derived from Marx, advocating class war and leading to a society in which all property is publicly owned and each person is paid and works according to his or her needs and abilities or it is also a member or supporter of a collectivist or cooperative community or system.

Before Mao Zedong, a man named Karl Marx had tried to start communism in China but through soviet communism it had been discarded and only atheism (disbelief in the existence of god) and tyranny (cruelty and injustice in the exercising of power or authority over others) were left to rule during the 1916's. By accepting a man who is named Mao Zedong to be China's leader is making communism come to China.

Mao Zedong may be a mad man but is intelligent. The Boxer Rebellion (when a group known as the Boxers murdered thousand of foreigners in an attempt to rid China of all foreign influence) is what led the people of China into helping Mao Zedong become accepted as China's leader.

Communism is a bad idea. Communism is a bad idea because there are only two classes in a communist society, Rich or poor. Also there was equal pay and unequal work. Like a doctor being paid the same amount as a laborer. If you get paid just as much as a laborer but are something important like doctors, then you might as well quit and become a simple laborer. You could also not have your own land. All land belonged to the government and if they wanted it for something they could just take it from you.

Mao Zedong is a man who learned the philosophies of Marxism and he became highly influenced by them. Mao Zedong followed these philosophies because he was poorly educated as a child but highly intelligent in his own way. The chaos and despair of tyranny and atheism played a large role in the acceptance of Mao Zedong by the people of China. Mao Zedong had roughly 85% of the nation's support but they were mostly poor farmers looking for a better living.

Mao Zedong having a meeting with the people of China for opinions on how he can enhance the government.

<http://images.google.com/images?q=mao+zedong&gbv=2&svnum=10&hl=en&safe=active&start=21&sa=N>

Some people may not want Mao Zedong to become China's leader and that just might cause some protesting over the next few months.

Sources:

http://www.anarkismo.net/newswire.php?story\_id=1555

www.allaboutphilosophy.org